I got your test results... You have Pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis.

How can I have it,
Doc? I can't even spell it or pronounce it!

Real Life Humorous Story: Dada's original Masterpiece!

While strolling down a crowded Manhattan sidewalk with my family during the Christmas holidays, we passed a sleek art gallery displaying original Pop Art pieces. Suddenly, my little granddaughter stopped dead in her tracks, pointed straight at the window, and shouted at the top of her lungs into the bustling crowd: "Dada, look! Your painting is here!"

In an instant, nearby pedestrians turned their heads to see what the commotion was about. Her tiny finger was pointing directly at Roy Lichtenstein's iconic artwork, Crying Girl, towering inside the gallery display.

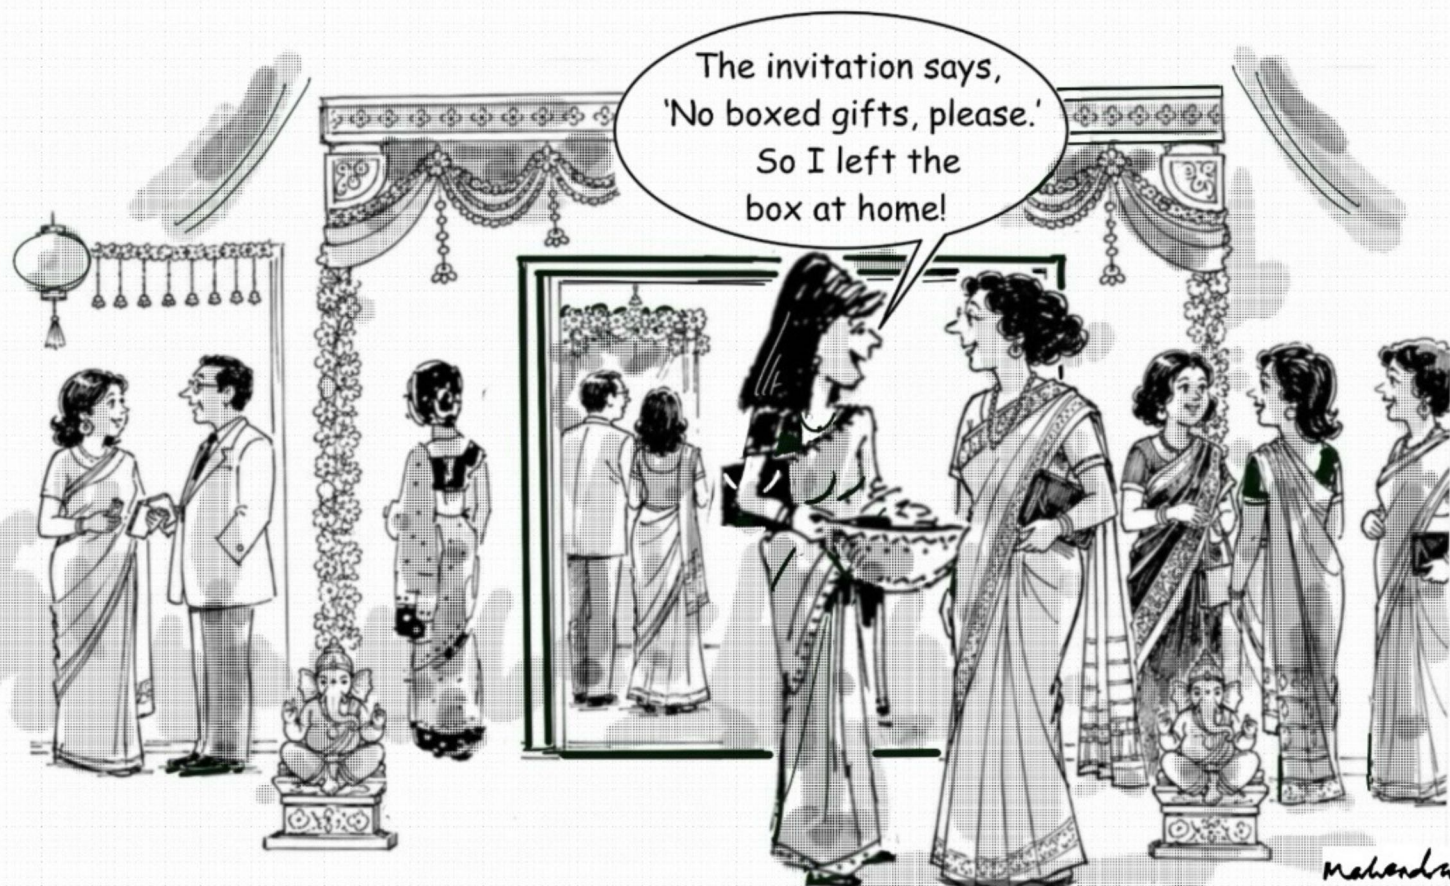

Little did the crowd know, I had made an exact hand-painted replica of that very piece, which hangs proudly on the wall of my house. Her sharp young eyes recognized the familiar face immediately—and in her innocent mind, the famous Manhattan gallery had stolen her Dada's original masterpiece!

I tell you... it's a small world! Did you see this gift? I gave this salad bowl to Meena at her baby shower. Meena gave it to Veena at her daughter's wedding. Veena's daughter-in-law gave the same bowl to Geeta at her housewarming party! Geeta put the bowl up for sale at a garage sale. And... I think Rita bought it from the garage sale... and finally, after going around and around, the same bowl has come back to my house!
